

Student Exhibition: Interwoven

Dear friends,

I would love to share an inspiring and thoughtful student exhibition that's happening right here at UNSW.

Interwoven is a creative showcase by students from the Remaking Worlds: Critical Paradigm Shifts course, exploring themes of grief, resilience, and our relationship with nature through creative writing, sound, collage, and interactive works. Most students involved are not art-trained—many are stepping into creative practice for the very first time, making this both an artistic and courageous journey.

This exhibition prompts reflection on how creativity can help us process loss, reimagine resilience, and forge new connections with the world around us in paradigm-shifting ways.

We are thrilled to announce that the exhibition will be officially opened by the remarkable artist Deborah Kelly. Find out more about Deborah Kelly in her new ABC documentary here.

I warmly invite you—and anyone in your network who might be interested in art, education, sustainability, or community—to come along, explore the work, and stay a while.

Opening: 4PM, 1 May

Closes: 12PM, 2 May

The Gallery @ Anita B. Lawrence Centre (West Wing), UNSW Kensington

Reserve free tickets here: <https://www.eventbrite.com.au/e/interwoven-tickets-1326166923969?aff=oddtcreator>